The Hoe Pier and Drake's Island. The Hoe Pier, opened in 1884, is about 480 feet long and has a fine pavilion, used for concerts in the summer and a rink in the winter. Drake's Island lies in the route for the Eddystone Lighthouse. Here a battery, bearing Drake's name, was raised on the ruins of a chapel to St. Michael, which in Charles II.'s reign became a State prison. General Lambert lay captive here until his death.
